PRESS RELEASE

Tzedek – a Jewish organisation working on development and projects to alleviate poverty in India

On 7th December, the Indian Jewish Association and the Board of Deputies of British Jews hosted a presentation by Tzedek, a Jewish organisation which works with partners, projects and communities abroad to provide direct support to help local people so that they can help themselves.

Currently, Tzedek is working on a number of projects in Indian rural locations, and these were described and illustrated by its Director Dan Berelowitz, and volunteer Hirsh Cashdan.

They were introduced by Board President, Vivian Wineman, and Group Relations Director, Michael Whine.

Jitendra Kumar, Indian High Commission Minister for Community Affairs and IJA founding President, Aubrey Rose, also spoke on the strong affinities between the Indian and Jewish communities in Britain, and the long and happy settlement of Jews in India.
